Reverse Charge Procedure

For most of our customers outside Germany the 'reverse charge' procedure applies. Article 44 of the Council Directive on the common system of value added tax states that services provided by one company for another company are taxed where the recipient of the service is based and not where the service provider is based. As service recipients, customers of Deutsche Post AG are therefore liable for payment of VAT ('reverse charge' procedure). That means that our customers are required to pay VAT to their tax authorities. If necessary please discuss the impact of the reverse charge procedure on your company with your tax advisor.

Process changes

The processes will remain the same for you.
